

Your hubris has angered the gods, and to teach you a lesson in humility, they have sent you to hell!

Hell is a minimum wage job in a tip-based industry.

In your own universe you might have been a dashing hero, a mighty demigod, or a cunning villain, but here you are a lowly barista in the Eternal Grind Café, and the breakfast rush is coming. Earn enough tips to buy back your soul and open up a portal back home!

- What act of hubris landed you in hell?
- Create a menu item!

Beware: If your barista skills ever reach 6, you become a mindless drone too trapped in the system to break out and too burnt out to care. Your customer service is horrible, and you try to convince your fellow players to do the same. To prevent this: describe a social media post where you complain about your job!

If your character skills ever becomes 6, you start murdering customers left and right. To prevent this: Have a flashback of an epic scene in your character's life.
